Biden wins Wisconsin, presidency still hangs in balance

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — On a day of electoral uncertainty and legal action, Joe Biden won Wisconsin on Wednesday, reclaiming a key part of the "blue wall" that slipped away from Democrats four years ago and narrowing President Donald Trump's pathway to reelection.

A full day after Election Day, neither candidate had cleared the 270 Electoral College votes needed to win the White House. Margins remained tight in several fiercely contested states including the Great Lakes battlegrounds of Michigan and Pennsylvania. But Biden's victory in Wisconsin loomed as an important step to the presidency.

He said in late afternoon that he now expected to win the White House along with running mate Kamala Harris, though he stopped short of outright declaring victory.

"I will govern as an American president," Biden said. "There will be no red states and blue states when we win. Just the United States of America."

The Associated Press called Wisconsin for Biden after election officials in the state said all outstanding

JEFFERSON COUNTY

Area votes red in unusual election year

Collin Overton

A line of voters practices social distancing while awaiting their turn to vote Tuesday at E.O. Muncie School on Madison's hilltop. More than half of the 14,865 Jefferson County residents who voted this year voted early — 6,940 by walk-in absentee through Monday and 2,263 by mail-in absentee — but that still left 6,940 heading to the county's 24 precincts on Election Day. The overall turnout was 66.97%.

BY COLLIN OVERTON

A clean GOP sweep and high turnout for both early voting and election day capped an unusual election year in Jefferson County.

More than 14,800 of 22,196 registered voters submitted ballots in Jefferson County for Tuesday's election, a 66.97% turnout and higher than both 2012 (61%) and 2016 (63%). That total included a record number of absentee paper ballots (2,263) and walk-in absentee votes (5,662), which together made up 53% of all votes cast due to an ongoing COVID-19 pandemic that had earlier delayed the May primary to June and led to increased early voting opportunities at the courthouse and other satellite locations.

Vote counters at the courthouse started on the mountain of ballots at noon Tuesday and did not finish counting until 7 p.m., said Madison Mayor Bob Courtney, who was among the six officials counting votes that night. It wasn't until after 8 p.m. that candidates and the general public got results of the first four precincts plus early voters.

Classes at Peace Catholic Schools going 'fully virtual' until Nov. 17

Virus forces break for all but preschool

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

The virus pandemic that kept local students out of classrooms for much of the spring semester will force students at Prince of Peace Catholic Schools to learn from home once again as the schools shift to online learning over the next two weeks.

Prince of Peace Catholic Schools President Philip Kahn announced Tuesday that recent cases of COVID-19 and the contact tracing that is done to help identify other people who might also have been exposed, has prompted to schools to keep most of their students home until Tuesday, Nov. 17, where they can quarantine and take classes "fully virtual" until their return to the classroom.

"We have had a few positive cases that led to a larger number of students being contact traced and out of school. With that in mind we have decided for both Pope John and Shawe to go fully virtual until being back in the school on Nov. 17," Kahn said in a note to families. "During this time all extracurriculars will be paused including athletic practices and events. The exception to this rule is the Pope John preschool which will remain open for two reasons; it is considered an essential service and they have been fully quarantined from the rest of our Prince of Peace community."

The outbreak at Shawe follows a recent spike in COVID-19 cases in the community, a development local health official anticipated with the community reopening for business and the weather turning colder and moving more events indoors where the chance for exposure to the virus increases.

The move was first indicated when the school canceled girls basketball games and practices for the rest of this week and then the decision was made to send all students home for the

Goode takes race for Superior Court judge

BY COLLIN OVERTON

A competitive race for Jefferson County Superior Court Judge ended in a 13% win for Republican candidate and current Deputy Prosecutor Blaine Goode 8,093-6,220 over opponent and longtime local attorney Jeannie Stotts.

Blaine Goode

Goode, who campaigned on a platform promising tougher sentencing and increased efforts to reduce repeat offending, managed to secure 56.54% of the votes cast while Stotts, a Democrat running on a platform aimed at speed up the judicial process and developing solutions for the local drug epidemic, received 43.46%.

Stotts ran stronger among absentee ballot voters (68%), but fell behind in absentee walk-ins (35%) and election-day voters (43%).

According to county vote totals, 552 of Jefferson's 14,865 total voters opted to not vote for either candidate.

Speaking after his victory on Tuesday, Goode said he was thankful for supporters who went out of their way to contact friends and

CHARLIE'S BEAT

Bet the chances are good that when you go to see live music in Madison, you're going to see Danny Lee Cook holding down that tight bass line. I don't care if it's Jimmy Davis Band, Jordan Wilson Coalition, Amy Noel Band or the rock-a-zombie sensations the Newly Dedz, Danny does it all with aplomb.

Definitely a renaissance man with the four-string bass, Danny also does lead vocals on many songs.

"Ed Henry and I were in a band back in the 90s called Yellow 5," relates Danny. "Nirvana meets heavy metal kind of sound. We were the songwriters for that band and did all the vocals. I also write a bunch of stuff for the Newly Dedz. Not that we've been playing much lately, with COVID and all. Seems like all the gigs just dried up.

"But there's still a little bit of work happening for Jimmy and Amy. I also play in a classic rock band called Cold Steel with Brandon Griffith and Joe Breeck. We usually

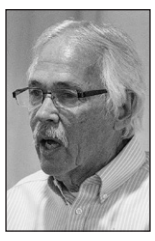
Incumbents Bramer, Little cruise to victory in commissioner race

BY COLLIN OVERTON

Incumbent Jefferson County Commissioners Robert Little and David Bramer cruised to easy reelection victories Tuesday night, with both getting more than two-thirds of the vote over their Democratic challengers.



Robert Little

Little won reelection for the Middle District, which includes Madison and the surrounding Madison Township, with 9,491 votes (66.11%) over Democratic challenger and former Madison City Councilman David Alcorn with 4,866 (33.89%). Bramer, representing the Lower District of Saluda, Hanover, Republican, Smyrna and Graham Townships, finished with 9,528 (67.24%) of the vote over Jim Crone, a retired Hanover college professor and a former member of Jefferson County Council and Hanover Town Council, who had 4,643 votes for 32.76%.

David Bramer

Crone and Alcorn outpoll both incumbents with paper absentee votes (1,334 and 1,243, respectively), but captured only about one-third of the in-person absentee and election day votes.

Bramer thanked his supporters for the landslide victory, saying in a strange election year, "you just don't know," when the vote could swing the other way.

Little also thanked supporters for their confidence in him during an odd election year in which the primary was delayed and many people voted early, remarking, "it's been unique to say the least."

Both commissioners can now continue their past initiatives to work through plans to build a new jail on Madison's hilltop and pass a new comprehensive plan for the county, which Bramer said could happen in December if they find a location allowing for social distancing.

Ron Lee the commissioner over the Upper District representing Lancaster, Monroe, Shelby and Milton Townships, is up for reelection in 2022.

Storie, Roney take seats on MCS Board

BY COLLIN OVERTON

A three-way race for two seats available on Madison Consolidated Schools Board of Trustees ended with victories for David Storie and Jay Roney, two community members with involvement in the school district.

David Storie

Storie and Roney will replace member Jeanne Dugle and current board president Jodi Yancey, both of whom will not run after their terms expire at the end of the year. Next year's board will also look a lot different due to the pending replacement former board president Rob Kring, after he resigned last month in order to relocate. The board will likely announce that replacement at a special meeting at 5 p.m. on Thursday.

Storie, the president of the booster club at Madison Consolidated High School and a parent of two Madison graduates, received the biggest total of the of 14,777 votes cast with 5,572 (37.71%). Roney, a physical education teacher, co-owner of Mad City Crossfit and the current weight and strength coach at the high school pulled in 4,916 votes 33.27% while John Schutte, a swim coach and husband of district communications coordinator Ashley Schutte, finished third with 4,289 (29.02%). However, 88 voters did not choose from the three candidates.

Storie led Roney and Schutte in both absentee and election day votes, following a more aggressive campaign over social media in the months leading up to Tuesday. He was seen making stops at several polling places Tuesday to talk to voters as well as staffing poll workers at other locations. He later dropped by both the Democratic and Republican party election night events to thank people from both parties for their support.

"I had no idea that so much work was done on both sides," he posted on Facebook Tuesday night after winning. "I want you all to know, both Democrats and Republicans, that I appreciate all of your help and advice that has been given to me over the last couple of months.

"Some might say that it took both parties to teach me how to be somewhat of a politician. Thank you to all of my poll worker[s], family, friends, and Facebook friend[s]. It took a great community to get this done and I appreciate it."

In the race for Southwestern Jefferson County Consolidated School Corporation board, Misty Dawn Jacob garnered 1,202 (40.11%) to unseat incumbent Narci Burress representing the Town of Hanover, Burress received 1,162 votes (38.77%) while Cree Green got 633 (21.12%).

Meanwhile, Jonathan Simpson, won an uncontested race for the Republican Township seat and will replace Jodi Gray, who decided not to run for another term this year. Simpson received 2,426 votes.

ballots had been counted, save for a few hundred in one township and an expected small number of provisional votes.

Trump's campaign requested a recount. Statewide recounts in Wisconsin have historically changed the vote tally by only a few hundred votes; Biden led by 0.624 percentage point out of nearly 3.3 million ballots counted.

It was unclear when or how quickly a national winner could be determined after a long, bitter campaign dominated by the coronavirus and its effects on Americans and the national economy. But Biden's possible pathways to the White House were expanding rapidly.

After the victory in Wisconsin, he held 248 Electoral College votes, 22 shy of the 270 needed to win the presidency. The former vice president had several possible combinations of outstanding states to win the White House. For example, combining Nevada with either Michigan or Georgia would land him at precisely 270.

Trump campaign manager Bill Stepien said the president would formally request a Wisconsin recount, citing "irregularities" in several counties. And the campaign said it was filing suit in Michigan and Pennsylvania to halt ballot counting on grounds that it wasn't given proper access to observe.

At the same time, hundreds of thousands of votes were still to be counted in Pennsylvania, and Trump's campaign said it was moving to intervene in the existing Supreme Court litigation over counting mail-in ballots there.

In other closely watched races, Trump picked up Florida, the largest of the swing states, while Biden flipped Arizona, a state that had reliably voted Republican in recent elections.

The Trump campaign questioned the results in Arizona, with aides having come to the conclusion that, without Wisconsin, their best, if still unlikely, path to victory was winning that state and Pennsylvania. A legal challenge in Arizona was possible.

The unsettled nature of the presidential race was reflective of a somewhat disappointing night for Democrats, who had hoped to deliver a thorough repudiation of Trump's four years in office while also reclaiming the Senate to have a firm grasp on all of Washington. But the GOP held on to several Senate seats that had been considered vulnerable, including in Iowa, Texas, Maine and Kansas. Democrats lost House seats but were expected to retain control there.

The high-stakes election was held against the backdrop of a historic pandemic that has killed more than 232,000 Americans and wiped away millions of jobs. The candidates spent months pressing dramatically different visions for the nation's future, including on racial justice, and voters responded in huge numbers, with more than 100 million people casting votes ahead of Election Day.

Trump, in an extraordinary move from the White House, issued premature claims of victory and said he would take the election to the Supreme Court to stop the counting. It was unclear exactly what legal action he could try to pursue.

Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell discounted the president's quick claim of victory, saying it would take a while for states to conduct their vote counts. The Kentucky Republican said Wednesday that "claiming you've won the election is different from finishing the counting."

The president stayed out of the public eye but took to Twitter to suggest, without basis, that the election was being tainted by late-counted ballots. Twitter flagged a number of Trump's tweets, noting some of the information shared was "disputed and might be misleading about an election or other civic process."

Biden, briefly appearing in front of supporters in Delaware early Wednesday, urged patience, saying the election "ain't over until every vote is counted, every ballot is counted."

"It's not my place or Donald Trump's place to declare who's won this election," Biden said. "That's the decision of the American people."

Vote tabulations routinely continue beyond Election Day, and states largely set the rules for when the count has to end. In presidential elections, a key point is the date in December when presidential electors met. That's set by federal law.

Several states allow mailed-in votes to be accepted as long as they were postmarked by Tuesday. That includes Pennsylvania, where ballots postmarked by Nov. 3 can be accepted if they arrive up to three days later.

Foy, Crozier and Copeland lead GOP sweep of council

Out of 32,849 votes cast overall for three Republicans and three Democrats (vote for 3), Foy received the most votes at 7,253 (22.08%) while Crozier was second with 7,053 (21.47%). Copeland road the GOP wave to finish 10 votes back of Crozier with 7,043 (21.44%) to complete the party sweep.

Crozier and Foy were reelected for their second terms on the Council while Copeland will start his first, taking the place of longtime council member Joe Craig, who opted not to run for another term.

Probe into suspicious package ongoing

BY THE COURIER STAFF

The Jefferson County Sheriff's Office — as well as officers with the Indiana State Police and agents with the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives — are still investigating a suspicious package that was found on Sunday, Oct. 25, just north of Madison.

The package, which appeared to be a bomb, was reported to authorities at about 12:15 p.m. on State Road 250 near the intersection of US 421. Deputies secured the scene until the Indiana State Police Explosive Ordnance Disposal Team was dispatched to assist with retrieval and the investigation.

Kent Volunteer Fire Company and Hanover Fire Department responded to a brush fire that almost got out of control behind a residence on West Deputy Pike Tuesday around 2 p.m.

The sheriff's office has since confirmed that the package was an explosive device but declined to elaborate other than the investigation is ongoing.

Earlier, authorities had asked for information on a silver or white pickup that had been spotted in the area earlier that morning but now that truck is no longer being sought in the case and is not believed to be involved. The investigation is still ongoing and police are following other leads.

MAN CHARGED WITH DOMESTIC BATTERY, DUI

A Madison man is facing felony strangulation and driving under the influence charges in connection with an alleged domestic assault police resounded to Monday.

Michael Wayne Aldridge, 26, has been charged with strangulation, a Level 6 felony, and operating a vehicle while intoxicated and domestic battery, both misdemeanors, and lodged in the Jefferson County Jail without bond.

Jefferson County Sheriff's Deputies were responding to a report that Aldridge had battered and strangled a family member before leaving their residence in his vehicle. Police who stopped the vehicle charged Aldridge with operating a motor vehicle under the influence in connection with the traffic stop and domestic battery and strangulation in connection with the alleged assault.

FIREFIGHTERS DOUSE BRUSH FIRE QUICKLY

Kent Volunteer Fire Company and Hanover Fire Department responded to a brush fire that almost got out of control behind a residence on West Deputy Pike Tuesday around 2 p.m.

Homeowner Betty Phillips said she was burning trash in her backyard as she normally does when the fire got out of control and started spreading through her backyard. Phillips said she first tried to put the blaze out with a garden hose, but it continued to spread into the hollow behind her home so she called for assistance.

Firefighters were able to get the fire under control within a few minutes, and Kent remained on scene until about 3 p.m. to put out remaining hot spots.

Fortunately, rain from days prior made it harder for the fire to spread closer to the residence, and firefighters were able to contain it to about half an acre, Kent Fire Chief Brett Roberts said.

GOP sweeps by Democrats in races throughout Indiana

BY TOM DAVIES AND CASEY SMITH
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Republicans won continued control of the Indiana governor's office and kept the state in the GOP's presidential column as voters cast the final ballots Tuesday, with Democrats falling short in other races they targeted in hopes of clawing back to political relevance in the state.

Gov. Eric Holcomb and President Donald Trump both won victories in the state for Republicans, along with the state attorney general's race where Democrats had made a major push. A central Indiana congressional seat that Democrats hoped to win after decades as a GOP bastion was undecided Tuesday night.

A record number of more than 1.7 million voters cast ballots ahead of Election Day as coronavirus health concerns prompted more use of mail-in ballots and early voting sites.

GOVERNOR'S RACE

Holcomb won a second four-year term as governor, easily fending off challengers who criticized his handling of the coronavirus pandemic.

Holcomb went into his campaign for a second term with a huge fundraising advantage and didn't face any well-known challengers. Holcomb sidestepped any criticism of Trump even as Holcomb promoted face mask use and issued a statewide mask mandate in July.

Holcomb choked up during his victory speech while thanking his family.

"I am flat-out eager to continue to get 'er done with you over the next four like we've done over the last four," Holcomb said.

Holcomb overcame Democrat Woody Myer, a former state health commissioner who called for tougher anti-virus actions as Indiana's COVID-19 deaths and hospitalizations climbed steeply since nearly all state restrictions were lifted in September.

Myers said in his concession speech that he still believed Indiana "could do more for those who have so little and those who need so much."

"About two years ago when this journey began, I knew it was a long shot and that the battle was entirely uphill," Myers said.

Some conservatives called Holcomb's coronavirus actions excessive and, instead, backed Libertarian candidate Donald Rainwater.

Holcomb was lieutenant governor under then-Gov. Mike Pence and replaced Pence as the Republican governor candidate in 2016 after Pence became Trump's vice presidential running mate.

Holcomb carried Jefferson County with 62.44% of the votes cast — 9,074 to 3,7810 over Myers with Rainwater running a distant third with 1,748 votes.

LINES AND LOTS OF COUNTING

Voters faced long lines at some polling sites across Indiana and election officials said they might need to wait a while to find out results.

Some voters in central Indiana's Madison County waited in line up to five hours to cast their ballots Tuesday, with long lines remaining after polling sites were scheduled to close at 6 p.m. The county is part of the hotly contested 5th Congressional District.

"We've had unprecedented voter turnout, but things haven't gone exactly as we wanted them to today," said Russ Willis, chairman of the Madison County Republican Party and president of the county election board.

The county clerk's office in Indianapolis said Tuesday evening that it had processed about one-quarter of its some 210,000 early votes and that it will likely take the rest of the week before all are counted.

Indiana Democratic Party Chairman John Zody said the record number of mail-in ballots around the state means people might need to be patient while waiting for election results.

"That is perfectly reasonable given the circumstances," Zody said. "I'm willing to experience a little bit of a delay here if that means all the votes are going to be counted in the right way."

PRESIDENTIAL VOTING

Trump again won Indiana's 11 electoral vote as the state remained in the Republican presidential column.

The home state of Vice President Mike Pence wasn't in much doubt as Democrat Joe Biden's campaign paid little attention to the state that has gone for Republican candidates in 12 of the last 13 presidential elections.

Republican Todd Rokita cast himself as an unabashed President Donald Trump supporter with an aggressive law-and-order and anti-abortion agenda that will continue Hill's tactics of joining Republican lawsuits against what they regard as federal overreach, such as the Affordable Care Act, or "Obamacare."

Trump won Indiana by 19 percentage points in 2016 over Hillary Clinton. Republicans admitted his popularity had eroded in some areas, contributing to a contentious campaign for a longtime GOP-controlled congressional district in suburban Indianapolis that Democrats were trying to capture.

Trump carried 65.60% of the votes in Jefferson County, out-polling Biden 9,659 to 4,731.

ATTORNEY GENERAL

Republican Todd Rokita won the Indiana attorney general's office, defeating former Evansville Mayor Jonathan Weinzapfel in a race that Democrats had targeted in hopes of winning their first statewide election since 2012.

Rokita's campaign announced Tuesday he had tested positive for COVID-19 after developing "some symptoms" but was doing well.

Rokita lost the 2018 Republican U.S. Senate primary but started a politcal comeback by defeating current Attorney General Curtis Hill for the GOP nomination after Hill was tarnished by allegations that he drunkenly groped four women during a party.

Rokita cast himself as an unabashed President Donald Trump supporter with an aggressive law-and-order and anti-abortion agenda that will continue Hill's tactics of joining Republican lawsuits against what they regard as federal overreach, such as the Affordable Care Act, or "Obamacare."

Rokita had 9,289 votes in Jefferson County to 4,589 for Weinzapfel.

HOT U.S. HOUSE RACE

Indiana's highest-profile congressional race in years has Republican Victoria Spartz facing Democrat Christina Hale for central Indiana's 5th District seat following the retirement of current GOP Rep. Susan Brooks.

At least $15 million was sunk into the race, with national party organizations and dark-money groups spending heavily for the district centered on the northern suburbs of Indianapolis that Republicans have controlled for more than five decades. Spartz won a crowded Republican primary race that largely turned into a contest of loyalty to Trump. But she afterward shifted away from talking about Trump during the general election campaign.

Meanwhile, Democrat Frank Mrvan won election to replace retiring Rep. Pete Visclosky in the party's 1st District northwestern Indiana stronghold. The incumbents won reelection for the state's seven other US House seats.

In the House race in Jefferson County, incumbent Republican US Sixth District Rep. Greg Pence defeated Democrat Jeannine Lee Lake 9,462 to 4,546 en route to winning another term in Washington D.C..

STATE LEGISLATURE

The top Republican in the Indiana House survived a hotly contested campaign to keep his legislative seat.

Indiana House Speaker Todd Huston's district in the northern Indianapolis suburbs was among a cluster of legislative seats targeted by Democrats as they tried to paint the Republican incumbents as fallen out of step with voters.

Huston was facing voters for the first time since taking over the top legislative position in March from longtime Speaker Brian Bosma.

Huston outspent Democratic challenger Aimee Rivera Cole by at least 5-to-1 in the Fishers district as more than $1.5 million was poured into Huston's campaign from mostly Republican organizations and business lobbying groups seeking to keep him in the Legislature.

Republicans were likely to retain strong majorities in both the Indiana House and Senate, but Democrats were trying to break the two-thirds GOP supermajority in the House that gives them total control over legislative action.

Salvation Army in need of warming shelter volunteers

With the approach of colder weather, the Salvation Army of Madison is preparing for operation of the Madison Winter Shelter but that will take community support and volunteers, said the group's Facebook page.

In partnership with The City of Madison and other local organizations, the Salvation Army will be prepared to open as an emergency shelter this winter on the nights when the winter weather is extra cold. As always, the operation of the facility is dependent on the generosity of community members. If you are interested in volunteering for the winter shelter, you can get a volunteer packet to fill out and attend one of the mandatory Safe-From-Harm training dates.

The dates are, Thursday, Nov. 12 from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m., to receive a mandatory safe from harm training certification and Tuesday, Nov. 17 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m, for an optional disaster shelter training certification.

Anyone available and interested in volunteering should call the Madison Salvation Army at 812-265-2157.

"But another group I'm very excited about right now has Joe Perkinson on guitars, Tom Steveley on guitars, Kerry Mefford on drums and me on bass. The four of us were doing some recording at Dr. Dave Butler's studio, and he just looked at us and said, 'You know, you guys are pretty much Madison's rhythm section!' "

For those not familiar with the term "rhythm section" in the context of music, it means much more than just drums. In music parlance it includes the drums, bass, and often piano and guitar. It's the core group of musicians who lay down and hold the beat and the chord structure, usually so a soloist or vocalist can do their thing over the top.

For those not familiar with the term "rhythm section" in the context of music, it means much more than just drums. In music parlance it includes the drums, bass, and often piano and guitar.

"Dave Butler was basically saying, you guys are the core group here in Madison," continues Danny. "And I guess he's right. It's hard to name a band or ensemble that doesn't feature at least one or two of us. So we looked at each other and said, 'Yeah, we're the Madison Rhythm Section! That's a great band name.'

"The next thing we did was start writing down all the interesting and obscure songs that we love but don't often get to play. Joe and Tom have a bunch from the late 60s and 70s that I've never even heard of. Really cool stuff. It's been a blast learning all the new songs.

"Also, I like the challenge of playing with guys of that caliber. It makes you work twice as hard to rise to their level. All of us except Kerry are singers, so that makes it interesting too, taking turns on vocals. We're doing a lot of rehearsing now, and laying low with COVID. performances by The Madison Rhythm Section. It's going to be amazing.

"That's actually one of the great things about playing in Madison. You don't have to play the same old list of Top 40 stuff. The people who come out to shows here really appreciate the diversity and originality of the music. Contrast that to when I play in Louisville, it's almost like working from a script, you have to play a certain set of songs every time. Madison fans, on the other hand, understand musicianship and quality. It's very gratifying to play here."

It starts at 5 p.m. and goes until everybody has had their turn to play! At Off-Broadway Tavern, Ethan Turner finally gets his chance to headline a Taproom Saturday. He is amazing, and it's long overdue! And finally, if you haven't checked out the newly opened big Beer Hall room at Mad Paddle, you need to see what the excitement is all about. families on his behalf, the Jefferson County Republican Party and the Jefferson County Republican Women group, who helped respond to mail-in ballot requests throughout the election cycle.

He said his biggest priorities for his first year on the bench are to reduce the backlog of cases and make more efficient use of the court's financial resources.

"Of course, it's going to be a different philosophy — it's going to be a conservative philosophy in Superior Court now and so people are going to be held accountable for their actions — and I think that once that resonates with people we're going to see a difference in our crime rate," Goode said after securing victory.

Goode commended Stotts and her campaign, saying the two attorneys are friends and discussed running against each other early on in the election cycle, agreeing to only talk about personal matters during the campaign, he added.

"She handled herself with grace and class, and I appreciate that. That's the way I think everyone should run a campaign," Goode said.

the crowds firsthand, having to fill in as judge at the Neaville's Grove polling place after the original judge became exposed to the virus and awaited his test results. Lowery said she had to find six replacements for poll workers since last Monday alone due to volunteers becoming exposed to COVID, personal issues, having a conflicting work schedule and one even feeling threatened after alleged confrontations at a Trump parade last week.

Neaville's Grove ended up getting 150 more votes than what was projected, and nearly 500 showed up to vote at Dupont Elementary School, she added. E.O. Muncie Elementary was one of the busier polling places, with 750 voters stopping by throughout the day and lines wrapping around the sidewalk to the front entrance near closing time.

Voters showing up to vote Tuesday gave different reasons for not voting early. All said voting in person on election day felt safe despite the crowds.

Carma Akers, of Dupont, said she wanted to continue her tradition of going to the polls on election day.

"I knew from the start that I was coming out on election day … I really didn't know about voting early, I've just always voted on election day, I didn't want to change it," Akers said.

Shaniyah Cosby, 18, wanted her first time voting to be like a normal election day. She went with her mother, Shawnita, who said she considered voting early but her job made it hard to schedule that. The two said they were motivated to vote this year for issues like affordable healthcare and equality.

While early voting extended the process, the Republican party once again made quick work of the races in Jefferson County. The GOP held on to all seats on County Council, County Commission, the Surveyor's Office, Treasurer's Office and took control of Superior Court with the election of Deputy Prosecutor Blaine Goode over Democrat nominee Mary Jean Stotts. Coroner Rodney Nay and Recorder Molly O'Connor were the only Democrats to hold on to their seats after running unopposed.

Much of that was on the strength of straight party voting for Republican candidates on 3,316 ballots compared to 1,305 party line voters among Democrats and four Libertarians.

It was also a different scene at both party gatherings Tuesday night, with a group of 15-20 people — mostly candidates — eating pizza and waiting for the results at the Democratic Headquarters on East Main Street while more than 100 crowded together for the GOP party at the Livery Stable on Broadway.

The Republican-favoring crowd mingled over drinks for most of the night and cheered when results started to come in after 8 p.m.

Jefferson County Republican Chair Karl Eaglin was there and commented on the success Republicans have had in the county over the past decade. A mix of hard campaign work and support from inside the party have helped the party dominate in recent years, he said.

"We've always been the party to go out and knock on doors … we as a party get together a lot and work together. Very seldom do you see a candidate go out by themselves; it's usually two or three together. I think that adds camaraderie to the team effort that we have," Eaglin said.

Negotiations OK'd for Vaughn Drive parcels

Christmas parade, festival plans announced

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

Madison's Board of Public Works gave approval Monday for Mayor Bob Courtney and the city to negotiate the purchase of eight parcels of land located on Vaughn Drive along Madison's riverfront.

The property, currently owned by Madison Coal and Supply Company, has essentially sat unused by the company for years and was recently made available to the city at an estimated purchase price of $125,000 for all eight parcels.

Courtney said the city will need to have two appraisals done on the land with the average of the two being the amount the city can legally offer for the tracts. It would be an arrangement similar to the city's current negotiations to purchase two tracts of land along the west side of Harrison Street coming off the US 421 Milton-Madison Bridge where the city hopes to secure that property for future control and use and possibly locate a welcome center at the site at some point.

Courtney offered no potential uses for the Vaughn Drive parcels but said, much like he's previously noted about the Harrison Street property, "the opportunity is now" and the city needs to be ready to act.

"Anytime you have the opportunity to control and own property along the river you should do it," he said.

A motion to enter into negotiations to buy the property was made by David Carlow, seconded by Karl Eaglin and approved by all three board members.

"It would be nice to have control of that property going forward," Carlow said.

In other business, the board approved the date of the city's annual Christmas Parade for Saturday, Dec. 5, and the closing of Main Street from West to Broadway streets that afternoon for a new event — a Christmas on Main Festival — similar to the event held last weekend celebrating Halloween.

Mark Campbell

A City of Madison leaf removal crew rakes and vacuums along St. Michaels Avenue in downtown Madison Wednesday afternoon. The city, currently shorthanded for operators due to the virus pandemic, is finishing up one trip through downtown Madison and preparing to begin work on the hilltop after that.

The parade, which will include six helium and four cold air balloons, as well as live reindeer and Santa, will begin at 11 a.m. with the festival running from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. All money needed to fund the event will be generated through donations.

Hannah Fagen, director of community relations for the city, said there will be opportunities for children to visit with Santa and the reindeer after the parade and she also hopes to have tree vendors and other holiday attractions. The parade balloons alone will require 94 handlers so groups and individuals who want to participate should volunteer through the city's website at www.madison-in.gov.

The city's own community Christmas Tree lighting ceremony will be the Friday night after Thanksgiving — Nov. 27— at the Broadway Foundation with the light switch set to be flipped at 6 p.m.

In other business, the board:

— Approved final payment of a PACE grant for a rehabilitation project at 613 block of West Main Street and $25,000 funding of another project at 829 West Main Street where a building is being rehabilitated after being heavily damaged by fire.

— Agreed to have a representative of Beaty Construction attend the Nov. 16 meeting to discuss ongoing plans for the bridge approach on Harrison Street and work along Second Street heading into winter.

— Heard a report that leaf pickup is running behind schedule due to a lack of personnel to man trucks now that Madison Correctional inmates are not allowed outside the facility during the COVID pandemic.

Leaf trucks will finish one round in the downtown area this week and move to the hilltop for a round of pickups there. One truck is currently in use but another could be pressed into service if the city can hire or find enough manpower for the operation.

A call for part-time workers at $10 per hour landed only one applicant but the city hopes to pick up additional help from the Jefferson County Jail, where Sheriff Dave Thomas has agreed to allow a supervised work detail involving inmates who volunteer for the job.

two-week period that is normally required for the virus to run its course except in the most serious cases.

Unlike last spring when schools had to quickly put together a back-up plan to classroom instruction when the pandemic first began, Shawe and other schools entered the 2020-21 school year with plans in place should a widespread outbreak return.

"During this time students will be experiencing a brighter version of virtual learning. One that is better than they experienced in the spring," Kahn said. "In most cases we will be broadcasting from our classrooms in real time with the teachers still instructing their students on a daily basis. More emphasis will be given to the relationships and the instruction needed to make learning authentic and less emphasis will be given to 'packet work', though students will still need to work on some actual physical work! We get students ready for college and will continue providing our college level instruction.

"It is our mission at Prince of Peace Catholic Schools to grow our students in mind, body, and faith. This past spring proved to us just how important this community is for the emotional well-being of our students and families," Kahn added. "With this in mind, the leadership team is making it our priority to keep students in the physical school for long spans of time as often as possible. Our hope is that we use virtual learning minimally to keep us safe while specific issues clear up and then we can return to in-person instruction as soon as safely possible. We do not want long spans of time to pass without us being with our students! We are making some adjustments to our processes that will help us with this and we will be communicating those changes soon."

With that in mind, Kahn noted that the schools will soon provide information that will "directly affect just how smoothly the next days will go" including better details what student schedules will look like.

He asked families to "keep communicating with us when someone in your household gets sick so that we can make sure we have the information that we need to be as safe as possible."

"Please be careful and safe. In this COVID world, it is so important for us to all make sacrifices if we want our schools to be able to consistently stay in-person for long periods of time as we have done so far this year," Kahn said. "Stay away from people who are not on your 'short-list' and protect yourself from this rather frustrating disease."

Husband mean since concussion

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: How much can a woman take before she finally gets enough guts to leave? My husband and I are older (60) parents to 19-year-old twins. Things were OK for the first 15 years we were married. Then he got cancer, which was tough. He went through chemo and is now in remission. But two years ago, he fell down a flight of stairs and had trauma to his head, and he has never been the same. He is on disability insurance. I work 50 hours a week.

My youngest twin moved out because my husband is so controlling. For example, she was working late one night to get caught up. She called and said she would be home at 12. At 12:10 a.m., he called her place of employment and demanded she come home, embarrassing her in front of her peers and boss. He calls the other twin lazy, even though she works two jobs. The usual fight between us consists of him calling me fat trash and the worst mistake he had ever made. When I say that I am leaving, he gives me a sob story about how it's his concussion that makes him this way. I want out but can't afford to leave; he controls the money. Am I overreacting? — Worn-Down Wife

Dear Worn-Down: No. Your husband's behavior is unacceptable. The name-calling and constant insults constitute verbal abuse. If leaving feels like the healthiest option for you, then I encourage you to do so.

This situation is complicated, though, by the fact that his personality only changed after he suffered the trauma to his head. It is true that concussions can have lasting effects on one's brain functioning. There are some treatments that can help with this.

Neuropsychologist Dr. Celeste Campbell notes, it "is not unusual for the person with a brain injury and/or his or her family to need some counseling or therapy to understand this new identity, personality, and emotional reaction style." Campbell says that the person who suffered the traumatic brain strategy may learn strategies to "better express emotions, avoid those situations likely to be particularly frustrating, read signs of emotional distress, and react in a calmer manner to emotionally charged situations." You and your husband might want to talk to his doctor about potential treatment plans toward this end. If your husband is willing to seek that help, perhaps your life together can be manageable again. I'm sorry that you've had such a difficult few years, and my heart goes out to you and your girls.

Marriage is more than being there

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I have been married to a caring, sweet, very cool woman for the last 13 years. We have four children. Like all marriages, we've had our ups and downs, but I thought we were solid.

A few months ago, she started spending time with an old friend, "Jimmy," who is a shady guy. One night after spending time with Jimmy, she came home, sat beside me on the couch, and calmly told me that she wanted to separate and that she had already set her Facebook status to single. She claimed that I was manipulating her. While I've seen how manipulative her family can be, I've never been manipulative toward her, at least not intentionally. I've always supported her emotionally, and I've never withheld money or anything like that.

But when I told her that I didn't think I was being manipulative, she said she really had just fallen out of love. She talked about how I wasn't affectionate with her; I didn't hold her hand. Well, I have been sleeping on the couch a lot of nights the last few years, only due to my not wanting to roll on our 3-year-old, who slept in our bed almost every night.

We have not been intimate the last few years except when she was tipsy and wanted to. I was not into it but went along with it. But if it was more affection and handholding that she'd wanted, I wish she had just told me. I guess I overlooked the little things.

I think about our four children and what our splitting up would mean for them. I worry about my wife's stability and, consequently, our youngest daughter's safety. I refuse to initiate the divorce on my end because we took a vow. Or should I just give up? Do you think I could find someone who would like me for me and accept the kids? I am probably one of the easiest people to get along with, and I always try to do the right thing. — Heavyhearted Husband

Dear Heavyhearted: I commend you for taking your wedding vows to heart. But being a good partner isn't just about staying in it; it's about staying present for it. Of course, your intimacy has suffered when you've been spending nearly every night on the couch. But if this is really the first time that your wife is raising any of these issues with you, then you both owe it to your marriage to try to work through them. Ask her to attend couples counseling with you. And if she insists on divorce, don't rush into your next relationship. Work on developing your self-esteem and communication skills first, so you'll be bringing your best, healthiest self to the table.

Dear Annie: You recommend Al-Anon a lot in your column. It's a good idea in theory, but in the small town where I live, when you walk into those meetings, you walk into a cohesive, preexisting group whose members just sit and talk to each other. I wish it would be better managed so that we could all benefit. — D.K.

Dear D.K.: From what I know of Al-Anon, your experience is the exception, not the rule. I encourage you to give it another try. Al-Anon suggests trying six different meetings before deciding that the program isn't for you. If there aren't six meetings near you, you can find telephone meetings on their website.

Virus forces Shawe to postpone its first two basketball contests

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

A positive case of COVID-19 has forced Shawe's girls basketball team to quarantine this week and, as a result, the school was forced to postpone the team's first two games of the season.

The Hilltoppers were scheduled to open the season on Tuesday at Lanesville and were supposed to host Christian Academy of Indiana tonight, but both of those games will have to be played at a later date if at all.

As a school, Shawe has gone to virtual learning and all sporting events, including practices, through Nov. 17 have been put on hold, meaning that the Hilltoppers' scheduled Ohio River Valley Conference game against Jac-Cen-Del next Tuesday has also been postponed.

Elsewhere, COVID issues at South Dearborn have forced several local schedule changes. A junior varsity girls basketball tournament this weekend at South Dearborn has been canceled but in response, Southwestern has scheduled a JV round robin series of games at home on Saturday with Switzerland County and Trinity Lutheran starting at 11 a.m.

In addition, the Switzerland County-South Dearborn girls game scheduled for next Tuesday has been pushed back to Thursday, Nov. 12. That game will serve as Switzerland's season opener.

Southwestern and Madison are both still scheduled to open the season this week.

Southwestern will host Henryville tonight and Madison heads to Charlestown on Saturday.
